DRAGON CALL

Insomnia does things to a girl's head, drives her to perform acts she would have scoffed at if not for a bad case of desperation. Yoga. Meditation. Getting in touch with her inner Lune via witchy rituals she doesn't even realize she's enacting until she's naked in the dark with an aggressive dragon...or two.

Cora Phillips has spent her life denying the Lune tradition but with two dragons--and their masters--hounding her with mating claims, her denying days have come to an end. Like it or not, the dragons have come.

And she doesn't like it one bit.

DRAGON DANCE

A dragon knows how to find his mate no matter how far she runs, and Lune-witch Cora's dragon knows exactly how to lure her back for another dance with his master. Returning to New York on a mission to save her Dragonkeeper from his own self-destruction, she discovers this waltz is even more complicated than the first.

When a Lune has three different partners, which one leads?

DRAGON BOUND

Wrists bound to a hotel bed. Wrong dragon in her head. Flavor of fire on her tongue. That's how the end begins.

Cora can't run anymore. Not ever again. The mysteries of her life, the heritage she's denied, the lovers and enemies she's fled have all caught up to her, ready to eat her from the inside out if she doesn't embrace her birthright, bind her draconic subjects, and rule like the queen she was born to be.
