Do Nothing Till You Hear from Me Declan Lynch

Freddie Dowd has been scraping a living composing catchy jingles for TV ads. That is, until he hits the big time. One of his tunes is recorded by the boy band Fellaz and tops the charts in almost every country worldwide. Freddie suddenly finds himself with money - a lot of money. And so begins Freddie's quest to support the musicians with 'real' talent, in particular, the sax player Bricks Melvin. What he can't see, is that Bricks is just happy to have a roof over his head, especially when the beautiful Nadine, Freddie's daughter, is under that same roof. With a fist full of cash, and a head full of good intentions, Freddie hasn't reckoned on Bricks' sinister motives. But when the only thing more precious to him than the music is threatened, Freddie realises that not even money can protect his family.
